

Family Mediation

Family mediation is initially conducted individually with an independent, accredited, trained professional who, following assessment, brings both sides together to help you reach a final solution. Mediation can be less stressful than going to court - and it works. If children are involved, it's better for them if their parents co-operate and can help maintain important family relationships. All family mediators are FMC accredited.

Civil & Commercial Mediation

Mediation resolves issues fast, economically and without the use of a solicitor. Conducted in a friendly manner parties are interviewed separately with the mediator working between parties to find a binding and enforceable solution.
